A Poem to Begin...

TOUCHSTONE

Not a day goes by
when I reach into my pocket once moved
by the constant sea of
contact, no tree bark
here, just a hazel
stone, present, which
is now, of course, the past. Not a day goes
by that I don't touch you again and again. I think of you and
wonder what you
would do in a given
situation, if I were
the one who left,
would you keep me
in your pocket?
Would you think of me at all? Probably not, for you are you,
and I am me, and thus it is that we are not together. But not a day goes by that I
don't reach into my
pocket and there you
are.
